Meeting planned for Hancock officials to discuss consolidation

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK

A meeting is planned this week for Hancock County government officials to discuss consolidation.

In recent Bay St. Louis City Council meeting, council members voted to contact other government bodies in the county to set a meeting for a general discussion on consolidation and its merits.

"The council basically just wants to get everybody together to sit down and talk about consolidation and maybe throw a few ideas around," according to Bay St. Louis City Clerk Edward A. Favre.

"Hopefully in the discussion we can find areas for consolidation that will be good for everyone involved," he added.

Also by getting together now if any legislation is needed for potential areas of consolidation, the group can get in touch with Senator Gene Taylor and Representative J. P. Compreta to get the paperwork ready to be presented in the January term of the Mississippi State Legislature, Favre said.

"Maybe a committee will also be formed with representatives from each of the government boards to continue seeking information about the advantages of consolidation," he said.

Among those invited to attend the meeting are Waveland Mayor John Longo Jr. and Waveland Aldermen Barbara Rappold, Herman Yarborough, Louis Smolensky and Bob Hubbard; Hancock County Supervisors Bert Courregé, Ronald Cuevas, Roger Dale Ladner, Sam Pernicaro and James Travica; Sheriff Ronald Peterson; and Circuit Clerk E. Michael Necaise.

Representing Bay St. Louis will be Councilmen John Wilkerson, James Thrifiley, Wilmer Seymour, Lisa Coward and Charles Johnson; and Mayor Victor J. Franckiewicz.

Others invited are members of the Hancock County School Board and Superintendent Terrell Randolph, and the Bay St. Louis-Waveland School Board members and Superintendent Roger Oge.

Pier project completion expected this summer

BY DENA BISNETTE

Construction on the first phase of an extension of the Garfield Ladner Memorial Pier in Waveland is expected to take about five months.

In a presentation to the Waveland Board of Aldermen, Consultant Ray Eaton said the expected completion date would be "some time in the May to July range."

Bid specifications are under review by the board's attorney, Lucien M. Gex, prior to publication of the required legal advertisement.

The decking of the wooden 500-foot-long extension to the existing concrete pier will be 10 to 12 feet above mean high tide level, Eaton said.

Accessory items for the new part of the pier will include three types of lighting, one of which is an alternate item on bid specifications in case the bids come in too high, he added.

Plans call for a light to be installed every 48 feet under the pier for night security.

Overhead lighting is planned all along the pier, but at night the lights for the wider, hexagon-shaped fishing areas can be switched off from a locked switchbox located at the end of the existing pier.

Also lighted will be the 80-foot "T"-shaped end of the extension, where another section of pier can be added during a later phase of the project.

Water pipes are also planned to allow the pier to be provided with drinking fountains and wash basins at fish-cleaning areas, Eaton said.

Later phases will be added when funds become available. They include items such as an additional extension, restrooms, parking areas, an electrical service area and a work area for a caretaker, Eaton added.

The pier project is part of an overall waterfront improvement plan formulated with the assistance of a citizen committee including Vincent Schott, Nancy Gex, Ray Kidd, Buddy Klein, Donald Caserta, Alderman Louis Smolensky and Mayor John Longo Jr. Jerry Mitchell of Bureau of Marine Resources, which has provided part of the funding for the pier, served as the committee's technical consultant.

Plans in addition to the pier are designed to help draw tourists as well as local visitors to the pier and Coleman Avenue areas and help revitalize business in Waveland's old downtown section as well as along US-90.

Possible projects related to the beachfront development concept include street improvements; events such as fishing rodeos, seafood festivals or art exhibits; placement of direction and information signs to help guide visitors and encourage commerce in both the Coleman Avenue and US-90 areas; coordination of activities with Buccaneer State Park; area clean-up projects; traffic lights if needed; and continuation of efforts to repair Beach Boulevard.

EROSION shows on the banks of the Jourdan River in McLeod Water Park in a photograph taken about three weeks ago. The eroding of the banks had been a growing problem and the Hancock County Board of Supervisors was successful this year in obtaining funding for the $170,000 project after eight years of trying. Beat Four Supervisor Sam Pernicaro said at the time repairs were started that the board had become concerned about possible dangers the eroding bluff might pose to visitors at the county-owned park and about the loss of several large trees that had fallen into the river after the soil was washed away from their roots. (Staff photo by Dena Bisnette)

FIXING THE PROBLEM of erosion on the banks of the Jourdan River in McLeod Water Park, a worker from Pitts Construction of Waynesboro checks some of the riprap placed on one of the repaired river bank slopes. In a $170,000 project headed by the U.S. Department of Agriculture Soil Conservation Service and the Hancock County Soil Conservation District, with $34,000 in funding supplied by Pearl River Basin Development District and additional assistance from the county, the slope of the bank was changed and a layer of geotextile filter fabric was installed to stabilize the soil. About two feet of riprap was then installed by the contractor. Work on other sections of the bank is continuing this week. (Staff photo by Dena Bisnette)

Bay woman to appeal child abuse conviction

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK

A Bay St. Louis woman is expected to appeal a guilty verdict of child abuse which was affirmed last week in Hancock County Circuit Court.

Della R. Sylvester, 27, of 123 Melody Lane was sentenced to a year in jail and a $1,000 fine for abuse of her five-year-old son.

She had appealed a misdemeanor conviction from Bay St. Louis city court.

In court motions Wednesday, Sylvester asked for a new trial or a judgement notwithstanding the jury verdict.

Both of the motions were overruled.

An appeal of a city court conviction of child abuse filed by Sylvester's boyfriend, Patrick W. Green, 30, in the same incident is scheduled for January.

Buddy Poppy distribution planned in Waveland

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK

Volunteers from the Veteran of Foreign Wars Post 4808 will be distributing poppies for donations in the Waveland area Saturday, Dec. 5.

The VFW Buddy Poppies are made by disabled veterans and proceeds from the fund-raising campaigns are used exclusively to benefit disabled and needy veterans, and the widows and orphans of deceased veterans.

The annual sale of Buddy Poppies by the Veteran of Foreign Wars of the United States has been officially recognized and endorsed by various government leaders since 1922.

"Honor the Dead by Helping the Living" is listed as the basic purpose of the annual sale of the Buddy Poppies.

VFW Post 4808 Commander Harold J. Spiess encourages all civic minded residents to "contribute to this worthy cause."

By supporting this cause through the purchase of Buddy Poppies, citizens of the community may show a recognition the merits of this cause and these poppies as symbols of appreciation for the sacrifices of the honored dead.

"I urge all patriotic citizens to wear a Buddy Poppy as a mute evidence of our gratitude to the men of this country who have risked their lives in defense of the freedoms which we continue to enjoy as American citizens," he continued.

Convicted murderer James Billiot will get another chance to prove he is insane before a scheduled execution can be carried out.

The Mississippi Supreme Court ruled Wednesday that the case must be sent back to Harrison County Circuit Court for a judge's decision on whether Billiot, convicted in 1982 of killing his stepfather, 53-year-old Wallace Croll Jr. of Leetown, is sane or insane.

Mississippi law includes a provision regarding persons who are convicted of a capital offense but become legally insane after conviction.

After appeals of his case, Billiot received a stay of execution on May 5, 1986. The execution had been scheduled for May 7.

Under that law, such a person can not be executed because he is not capable of understanding what offense he was tried for, why he has received a death sentence and the nature of that sentence.

If Billiot is determined to be insane, he will be transferred to the criminal ward of the Mississippi State Hospital at Whitfield. If the judge finds him sane, the execution can proceed.

After appeals of his case, Billiot received a stay of execution on May 5, 1986. The execution had been scheduled for May 7.

Terry Coleman, 25, of 5001 Florida Ave., Gulfport, is charged with the July 21 shooting death of Louise Lewis.

Lewis, 23, died after being shot in the head by a handgun at close range outside her apartment at Pine Shadow Apartments off Waveland Avenue.

Coleman was arrested about five minutes later. Police have said that Coleman was Lewis' ex-boyfriend and that the shooting followed an argument.

Reggie J. Barrios, 22, of Lakeshore is charged with the Oct. 10 stabbing death of Clermont Harbor resident Charles Fred Nixon, 51.

He is accused of stabbing Nixon repeatedly with a kitchen knife during a neighborhood party in Clermont Harbor.

According to Sheriff Ronnie Peter-

After other guests stopped the fight, Nixon headed for his car. Barrios is accused of grabbing a knife off the kitchen table, following Nixon and stabbing him. Peterson said Nixon died shortly after he was ad-

ASK OCHSNER

Q. Would you please explain how a mammogram helps detect breast cancer? Mrs. U., New Orleans, La.

A. About one in 10 women will develop breast cancer in their lifetime. More than 130,000 women will be diagnosed with breast cancer this year, according to the American Cancer Society. Despite these statistics, however, breast cancer is becoming an increasingly curable disease due, in part, to increased early detection.

According to Dr. Thomas Knight, head of the internal medicine section at Ochsner Clinic of Baton Rouge, the cure rate is greater than 95 percent in the case of small breast tumors which have not invaded other local structures. About 25 percent of tumors being diagnosed today fall into this category. But it's early detection which ultimately plays the deciding factor in this success rate.

Self-examinations and a yearly examination by your physician remain important in the early detection of breast cancer. Self examination is particularly important since up to 85 percent of "lumps" which need investigation are found by women themselves.

A mammogram is another diagnostic tool which aids in the early detection of breast cancer.

A mammogram is an x-ray picture of the breasts which is made by compressing the breasts between an x-ray cassette and a clear plastic plate. It is almost always painless, although some women may experience mild local soreness during the procedure due to the compression.

In recent years, routine mammography has become the primary medical tool for early detection of breast cancer. At one time, there was controversy about routine mammography because of the concern about radiation exposure to the breasts. Due to recent technical breakthroughs, however, radiation has been reduced by a factor of 10

Duck season opens Dec. 5

Mississippi's first waterfowl season opens this upcoming Saturday, Dec. 5. The short, three-day season will end Monday, Dec. 7.

State duck hunters will use the point system again for harvesting ducks in the Magnolia State, and the point values will be the same as last year according to Department of Wildlife Conservation executive director Vernon Beville.

"Harvesting ducks by the point system means placing a number value on each kind of duck," Beville explained.

"Hunters are permitted 100 points worth of ducks at a daily bag limit, with 200 points as a possession limit. No possession limit is permitted on the opening day of any season."

The point values of individual waterfowl species are available with other game hunting rules and regulations from individual license agents, conservation officers, and sports shops around the state.

They are available by writing the Department of Wildlife Conservation, P.O. Box 451, Jackson, MS. 39205. Conservation enforcement officials in Jackson are reminding hunters that to hunt ducks in Mississippi, hunters must have their guns plugged and incapable of holding more than three shells.

Hunters 16 years of age and over are required to purchase a federal duck stamp. In addition, hunters between 16 and 65 must have a $2 state duck stamp. Of course a valid hunting license is needed.

Resident hunters will find that they can hunt ducks and geese with either the $25 sportsman's license, the $13 all game hunting and fishing license, the $9 small game hunting and fishing license, or the $6 small game license.

Primitive weapons season opens Dec. 2

The Magnolia State is well into the throes of the fall hunting period. On just about any given weekend you can spot any number of blaze orange vests and caps in the woods.

Comes now the opening of the primitive weapons season on Wednesday, Dec. 2. The special 14-day season is for those deer hunters who like to use black powder guns to get their deer. Of course bowhunters will be able to use their weapons during this time.

The bag limit on deer during the primitive weapons season is one buck with antlers visible above the natural hairline per day, not to exceed five during the license year. The bag limit on does during this special hunting period is one antlerless deer per day, not to exceed three during the license year.

Primitive weapons are defined as long bows, recurves, or compound bows, single or double-barreled muzzle-loading rifles of at least .38 caliber, or single or double-barreled muzzle-loading shotguns loaded with a single ball or slug.

All muzzle-loading primitive firearms must use black powder with either percussion caps or flintlock. Telescopic sights are not allowed while hunting with any primitive firearm.

In addition, no dogs or sidearms are allowed while hunting deer during the primitive weapons season.

The primitive weapons season will continue through Tuesday, Dec. 15.

On Thursday, Dec. 4, Slidell Memorial Hospital board member Mary Lee Daniels will accompany home health nurses on their in-home visits with patients, and make a Hospice visit with a Hospice volunteer. Throughout the week, patients in both the Home Health and the Hospice program will receive gifts of hand lotion and shampoo from their visiting nurses and volunteers.

The Home Health Department will close out Home Health Week with a "Community Day" on Saturday, Dec. 5. The Health Screening Van will be available in the parking lot of the Sports Medicine Center from 10 a.m. until 3 p.m. to provide free vision and cholesterol screenings. Several area physicians will be available to provide additional free screenings, such as body composition, blood pressure, and cancer screenings. Entertainment will be provided by the Slidell Sweethearts and the Lacombe Strummers. Balloons for the kids will also be given away.

Join Slidell Memorial Hospital in celebrating Home Health Week and attend the special free screenings on Saturday, Dec. 5.

How Hancock Bank helped South Mississippi go bananas.

It was the early 30's, and South Mississippi's lumber boom had just about run its course.

Without the millions of board feet coming in each month, the workers at the once-thriving Port of Gulfport had nothing left to do but go home and look for new work.

But Hancock Bank stepped forward, and with the help of government turned things around.

Using a special bond issue trusted by the bank, the Port of Gulfport built new warehouses. Revamped the facilities. And made the port more accommodating to different kinds of cargo, like the bananas that come from Central America.

Today, it's hard to imagine the Coast without our port, and the $78,000,000 and 2,800 jobs it generates each year for our state's economy.

From the earliest days of its existence, Hancock Bank has always looked ahead to what South Mississippi could be. And we've provided the personal service and financial means to make it possible.

We've helped hundreds of businesses diversify. And helped thousands of families plan for new additions of one kind or another.

That's the commitment we share with you. And it's one we'll never forget.

We're Hancock Bank. And since 1899 we've been making it possible in South Mississippi.

Monroe (Junior) now resides in Ocean Springs; Milton (M. J.) in New Jersey; Rosemarie in Slidell; Donald, Bay St. Louis; Irvin, California; and Vincent, Lafayette, La. Their deceased brother Lloyd resided in Georgia.

It was good to chat with my cousins about days gone by and happenings around the area.

It had been quite a while since they were all in town at the same time.

This is the time of the year when many of our citizens really think about their fellow man and lend a helping hand in many instances.

Several less fortunate families received Thanksgiving baskets from area churches, businesses and individuals, and this is very good.

Thanks are in order for those who have helped someone during Thanksgiving and to those who will be helping during the weeks to come.

Health Department to mark Care Week

Mississippi State Department of Health will observe Home Care Week Nov. 29 through Dec. 5—a national and statewide effort to promote home health care.

Home health agencies have existed in America for more than a century. Since the enactment of a 1965 Medicare law, which made home health services available to the elderly, home care has experienced tremendous growth.

A form of home health care has been available in Mississippi since the early 1900's when public health nurses made home visits to care for the sick; teach good habits of nutrition, hygiene and sanitation; and encourage healthy lifestyles. The State Department of Health has been providing home health services statewide since July 1969.

The number of Medicare-certified home health agencies has increased from 1,753 in 1967 to 5,877 in August 1987. The National Association for Home Care identifies another 4,000 home health agencies which don't participate in Medicare—totaling some 9,800 agencies nationwide providing home health care.

Both Medicare and Medicaid certified, the Mississippi State Department of Health provides home health care in every county, with 82 health department-based clinics. Private free-standing and hospital-based agencies add another 53 outlets for home health care in Mississippi.

Health Program Specialist Tucker Brown says that the State Department of Health serves 8,000 patients a year.

"Home health nurses and aides make about 270,000 visits to 8,000 patients each year—bringing in over $14 million—which equals the cost of care," he said.

Home health care offers a cost-effective alternative to higher priced care and also allows patients the comfort of recovering in familiar surroundings.

To be eligible for home health services, a person must be ill or disabled, essentially homebound, under the care and supervision of a physician, and in need of intermittent skilled nursing, physical, or speech therapy.

Home health care has become especially important with recent cutbacks in Medicare-reimbursed care.

Medicare enforces a breakdown of diagnoses and reimbursable hospital stays, or Diagnostic Related Groups (DRG's).

"DRG's specify—according to diagnosis—an amount of money to be reimbursed for a certain number of days," explained Alicia Crowder, home health nurse consultant.

"We're seeing a lot more people released from hospitals quicker and sicker," she added.

These patients who still need the skilled care a nurse provides can now rely on home health nurses.

"Home health nursing has changed considerably in the last five years," Crowder explained.

"Things that used to be done only in hospitals are being done in the home now," she added. "Home health nurses now give intravenous treatments in the home—and even care for patients on life-support systems."

Statistics support the need for home health care, too. In 1983, 27.8 million Americans were over age 65. The fastest growing of all age groups includes those 85 and over. By 1990, the ratio of elderly people to those under age 65 will rise from a current one in nine to one in five.

Home health care is an option to long-term care in medical institutions for the nation's ever-growing number of elderly and infirm.

For more information on home health care through the Mississippi State Department of Health, readers may contact their county health department.

SHOPLIFTING! Don't Do It...

No matter what the price tag says, the ultimate cost to the shoplifter is the loss of his reputation and perhaps the loss of his freedom. Shoplifting is a crime that could send you to jail! Don't Do It!

REPORT TO MISSISSIPPIANS

MISSISSIPPI CONTRIBUTES TO HIGH-TECH DEVELOPMENT

Mississippi is a state born out of the land. For years, agriculture and related concerns have been the mainstay of our society. Yet, in recent years, technology development has taken on an increasingly important role in both our state's and our nation's development. Gradually, emphasis has shifted to give industry and technology an equal place with agriculture.

Today, Mississippi is a major contributor to the development of high technology in the United States. We play a significant role in research and development, both for private and government interests.

In Hancock County, what began in 1961 as a test site for the static firing of Saturn V rocket engines has grown into a technical and scientific community comprised of a number of federal and state agencies and industrial contractors engaged in space and environmentally oriented programs.

Mississippi's Institute for Technology Development (ITD) is a national test project for commercializing technology development. ITD, along with its satellite companies, does major research in space remote sensing, physical acoustics, microelectronics, interactive video and more, all with practical applications for use in today's world.

The state's universities are all involved in technology development projects. In addition, industrial endeavors such as the Boeing plant in Greenville and Ingalls Shipbuilding in Pascagoula have been recognized nationally for their outstanding work.

Without a doubt, the future holds great promise for Mississippi as this work in technology development continues. Our state's efforts to secure the Superconducting Super Collider is an aggressive attempt to bring Mississippi into the forefront of the nation's developing technological expansion. However, no matter what the outcome of the competition for the Superconducting Super Collider is, Mississippi will continue on the road toward being a major contributor in high-tech fields.

We must all continue to work for additional opportunities for technology advancement—and the resulting, much-needed jobs in Mississippi. With cooperation and hard work from all of our people, our state can indeed have a future bright with promise.

The People's Business

Weekly Editorial
From Mississippi Economic Council

OPTIMISM REIGNS

A feeling of enthusiasm and optimism is running through the state as a new administration prepares to come in and leaders continue to work on improving Mississippi's future prospects.

All indications are that the new state administration will jump in to the work ahead. State office and legislative leaders, as well as governmental leaders on all levels, are pledging a new push to move the state forward.

That's been said before, but the enthusiasm shown now is based in part on many areas of opportunity currently open to the state.

Mississippi has shown—and continues to show—that it is a good home to technology-based industry. The state has quietly been adding first-class technology programs to its employment base. And the state's highly-rated bid on the federal Superconducting Super Collider project shows that it can play in the same game with the "big boys."

A great opportunity for economic development advancement exists in the state. Our new state leaders have pledged to beef up that effort, becoming much more aggressive in spreading the word on what Mississippi has to offer.

And business leaders are getting involved in the state's efforts, showing that they want to participate in setting an agenda that will move the state forward.

The progress the state makes in the months ahead will depend on hard work and a coordinated effort by all areas of leadership in the state.

IN CONGRESS

By Cong. Trent Lott

NEVER FORGOTTEN

It is a day set aside, a time to remember and recognize our veterans.

Just this week, President Reagan announced that he will support creation of a Cabinet-level Department of Veterans' Affairs. I, too, support this idea, and so do many of my colleagues in the Congress.

Our veterans deserve more than just a pat on the back. They deserve our respect and our attention.

These are the men and women who gave of themselves; took time out of their lives to defend and protect ours.

So let us together thank our servicemen, here at home and abroad, for a job well done. And let us not forget the support crews; the wives, husbands, sons and daughters, who spend months and sometimes even years separated from the ones they love.

It was John F. Kennedy who once said the most powerful single force in the world is neither communism nor capitalism, neither the H-bomb nor the guides missile—it is man's eternal desire to be free and independent.

It is a sacrifice to serve this country's military. The pay is not high and the benefits not attractive, but it is an experience most walk away from with heads held high.

For that effort, for that sacrifice, we are indebted to our veterans. We are grateful now, and we always will be!

MISSISSIPPI RECEIVES $492,000 TO ASSIST HOMELESS

Mississippi has received $492,000 in federal funds through the Emergency Shelter Grants program to assist homeless persons in the state. The funds result from passage by Congress of the Stewart B. McKinney Homeless Assistance Act this year.

Gov. Bill Allain designated the Governor's Office of Federal-State Programs (FSP) to administer the funds to Mississippi. FSP will work with existing programs for the homeless in the state to utilize the funds.

A workshop will be held at 1 p.m. Dec. 8 in the first-floor conference room of the Federal-State Programs Building, 301 W. Pearl St. in Jackson, to provide information to local units of government, nonprofit organizations that provide assistance to the homeless and others interested in the program.

And by bringing these veterans into the VA medical system, we are in a position to provide them with care for any medical problems they might have, and can assist them in applying for other benefits to which they might be entitled," said Dr. John Gronvall, the VA's Chief Medical Director.

Domiciliary care is provided to veterans disabled by age, disease or injury who are in need of medical attention but who do not require hospitalization or the skilled services of a nursing home.

EROSION CORRECTION WORK continues at a section of the Jourdan River near the public boat launch in McLeod Park. Through a cooperative project involving the U.S. Department of Agriculture Soil Conservation Service, Hancock County Soil Conservation District, Pearl River Basin Development District and Hancock County Board of Supervisors, the banks are being stabilized through a change in slope and installation of a geotextile fabric and riprap. Pitts Construction of Waynesboro is the project contractor. Unlike some sections of the bank where large trees were removed and grass has to be reseeded, work on this section of the river is being done without destroying a large oak tree that overhangs the bank. Park Ranger Joseph Curet said he did not want the tree removed because a large number of campers in the park specifically mention the oak when requesting a campsite near the launch. Retirement tax guide offered elderly

A new 18-minute videotape, titled "The IRS Tax Guide to Retirement," is now available from the Internal Revenue Service. This new videotape addresses elderly Americans' most pressing tax questions and the impact of the 1986 Tax Reform Act.

The IRS recognizes that retired taxpayers may have some special concerns about their taxes because of the special nature of their incomes or because their financial circumstances may have changed. "The IRS Guide to Retirement" is presented in a newsy question and answer format. TV journalist Marie Torre and retired IRS Public Affairs Officer Ron Fleissner answer specific questions from several retired taxpayers and discuss effects of the 1986 Tax Reform Act. Among the topics discussed are filing requirements, new standard deduction amounts, pensions, taxability of Social Security, IRAs, home sales exclusion, medical deductions, tax credit for the elderly and sources of free information.

This videotape is available for local showings to groups and organizations in VHS, Beta or 3/4-inch videocassettes. Anyone wishing to borrow the tape should contact the IRS Public Affairs Office in Jackson at (601) 965-4520 or by writing to 100 West Capitol Street, Suite 504, Jackson, MS 39269.

A CHILD'S PLACE IN THE KITCHEN

With more mothers working outside the home, and with the busy schedule most families face, many children are not getting cooking experience.

Even though children in the kitchen might be a bother to a busy parent, many rewards can be reaped from spending the time together and letting children help with food preparation.

Children will benefit by learning self-help skills that will help them prepare foods when parents are not at home. As the children mature they can be very helpful to working parents by assuming some food preparation and meal management tasks in the home.

This time is also a good time for sharing and establishing a closer parent-child relationship. And, recipes reinforce math and reading skills for school-age children.

Why not set up some time during the week to do some "hands-on" cooking activities with your child or children? Choose a time that is not hectic and you and your child are relaxed and in a good mood.

Ideal times might be a lazy Sunday or Saturday afternoon, a night that you are planning a simple dinner, or a time when other members of the family are gone.

Even the youngest children can help in the kitchen. They may not understand the whole concept, but it is a beginning. Let a pre-schooler help in baking by sifting flour and spooning it and the other dry ingredients into a cup. After the dry ingredients have been measured have the pre-schooler put them into the mixing bowl.

Show them how to add the liquid ingredients and let them stir the mixture. Children can also spoon the batter into the appropriate baking pans.

Another idea for young children is a layered casserole that uses mostly canned or packaged products. Open the cans or packages and let the children pour this into the casserole dish. An adult should be responsible for the actual baking.

Why not let the children help make a salad. They can tear the lettuce into pieces and mix the other ingredients (that you have chopped). Another idea is to make a milkshake or other frosted drink in the blender.

Another suggestion for working with children in the kitchen is to purchase a cookbook especially for children. Several good ones are available at your local bookstore or check one out of the library.

Microwave ovens are also useful in teaching children food prepara-

Mrs. Lou Wilkerson of Bay St. Louis presided over the regular monthly meeting of the Harrison County Salon No. 218 of the Eight and Forty Nov. 19 at the American Legion Home No. 119 of Gulfport at 7 p.m. The opening prayer was given by the chaplain, Dr. Esther Oschmann and the Pledge of Allegiance was recited by all. All chairmen presented their reports.

Mrs. Berniece Eche of Ocean Springs was acting secretary. Members present were from Ocean Springs, Biloxi, Gulfport, Bay St. Louis and Waveland.

The secretary read a letter from the Departmental Chapeau Abbie Williamson. She enclosed a newsletter to each of the following chairman: Genevieve Cole, partnership; Lucille Boudreux, children and youth; Mrs. Bernice Eche, nurses' scholarship.

The chaplain reported sending cards to members who are ill. She also reported that another loyal member passed away on Oct. 18 in Biloxi. She was Mrs. Helen Helm and will be sadly missed by all. A memorial service will be conducted at the January meeting.

Mrs. Bernice Eche asked the Salon for a donation to the nurses' scholarship fund. A motion was made and carried.

Final plans were made for the Christmas party Dec. 17 at the Western Sizzler in Gulfport on Courthouse Road at 7 p.m. All members are to bring a gift for exchange.

At the close of the meeting, a buffet supper was prepared by Dr. Esther Oschmann and was enjoyed by all. Let us try to be good to each other.

Ladies Auxiliary to Veterans WWI USA

The regular monthly meeting of the Ladies Auxiliary to Veterans World War I, USA Barracks No. 2537 was held on Nov. 19 at 3 p.m., following a Thanksgiving dinner with decorations which were shared with our WWI Veteran buddies.

The meeting was called to order by President Lois Fallo; opening prayer by Chaplain Adam, followed by Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag.

A report from Mississippi Department President Fallo was read regarding membership which has now been extended to eligible great-granddaughters. Also, the availability of life membership in the auxiliary.

The Mississippi Department VWVI convention is to be held on May 11, 12 and 13, 1988 at the Best Western Beach Motel in Gulfport. Members were urged to attend because of the considerable effort expended.

Discussion followed regarding the various volunteer services by the auxiliary to make life more enjoyable for veterans in the Gulfport and Biloxi hospitals.

Due to the Christmas holidays the December meeting will be cancelled, to be resumed Jan. 28.

Hancock North Central Elementary PTA

Hancock North Central Elementary PTA held its November meeting in the school cafeteria. The meeting was called to order by the PTA President Tony Caston.

A Thanksgiving skit was performed by Ms. Shirley Shaw's fourth grade class. The children were dressed like Indians with costumes they made themselves and sang songs on the life of an Indian Boy. The skit warmed the meeting room with Thanksgiving spirit.

After the Thanksgiving skit the minutes and treasury report was read by the secretary, Linda Peterson. The Halloween Carnival was discussed under old business as Mr. Caston noted there was a lot of cooperation from the teachers, parents, and students which made the carnival such a success.

On new business, the Santa Store is being planned for December. A committee has been selected with Jackie Necaise as Chairman. The Store has been planned for the week of Dec. 7-11. The PTA will purchase small gifts for the children to come in and purchase for their parents as Christmas presents on their recess.

The PTA parents and room mothers will help these children make their purchases, then the room mothers will gift wrap them and tag for the children to take home and put under the tree. It teaches the children the buying power of money, learn how to make decisions, make change in money and also gives them a chance to buy something on their own for their family.

Further new business, discussion was open for new ideas for the PTA to consider what is needed for the school and children and what areas need special attention.

A motion was made to adjourn the meeting and refreshments were served.

Thanksgiving opens Christmas tree cutting season

Almost every choose-and-cut Christmas tree farm will be open for business this weekend, as the cutting season officially began on Friday.

There will be no shortage of trees as there are some 450 Christmas tree farms scattered across Louisiana and Mississippi. According to Clarke Geron of the Louisiana-Mississippi Christmas Tree Association, over 450,000 trees will be supplied by growers from the two-state area.

The Christmas tree tradition in America can be traced back to the early 1700's when German immigrants brought the Old World custom of decorating fir trees for Christmas to Pennsylvania. By the early 1900's, one in five families decorated trees for Christmas. The custom spread quickly so that by 1930, Christmas trees had become an almost universal part of the American holiday tradition.

Mississippi-choose-and-cut Christmas tree farming began in the late 1960's and since 1976 has become very popular. Consumers enjoy buying fresh, locally-grown Christmas trees.

If your family would like to carry on the Christmas tree tradition by selecting and cutting your own tree, visit any of the area choose-and-cut

Christmas tree farms listed below:

Hancock County, Winter Wood Farm, Rester Road in Picayune, Pearl River County, Degges' Tree Farm, Poplarville, Kringle's Krop, Progress Road in Poplarville, Mills Farm, Rock Ranch Road north of Picayune, and Seal's Christmas Tree Farm, Neal Road, Picayune.

Cranberry: Close Kin To Blueberry, Azalea

By Milo Burnham
Horticulturist
Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service

Cranberries - what are they? We see them fresh in the market for that brief period following Halloween until the first of the New Year. Forty-eight percent of the crop is marketed in November.

Processed, they are available all year as canned whole berry or jelled sauce and as bottled or frozen juice or juice blends. Sometimes I even string the reddish-black berries with popcorn or garlands to decorate the Christmas tree. This is a hold over from my Yankee upbringing.

The cranberry is almost forgotten fresh fruit. One former Secretary of the U.S. Food and Drug Administration suggested we could do without cranberries, much to the dismay of the industry and the American public.

The scientific name of the cranberry, Vaccinium macrocarpon, tells us that the plant is in the same genus as the blueberry. This is certainly something in its favor. Tracing the plant back further reveals that it is in the Heath family and therefore related to Mountain Laurel, Rhododendrons, including azaleas, Andromeda and Enkianthus, another delightful ornamental shrub.

Cranberries are native to North America and are found from Newfoundland west to Minnesota, south to North Carolina, West Virginia, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois. In the wild, the plants grow in locations often too wet for most other plants.

The cranberry industry in the United States started in Massachusetts between 1810 and 1820 and soon cranberries were cultivated in New Jersey, spreading west to Wisconsin and north to Nova Scotia. On the west coast cultivation was started in Oregon in the 1880's by a man from Massachusetts.

Most cranberries are grown on floodable, organic or peat soils called bogs. Production is highly specialized requiring special land preparation, bog management and harvest equipment. Sand is a very important production item in bog preparation and can require as many as 400 cubic yards per acre initially with additional applications every few years.

The cranberry plant is a perennial vine propagated by cuttings (pieces of vines) taken in spring before growth begins. The vines grow along the ground and have upright branches that bear the flowers and fruit. The flowers are largely self-pollinating but aided by some pollinating insects. The vines do not grow rapidly and it takes 3 to 4 years after the cuttings are planted to bring a bog into production. The common name of the plant was derived from the older name "craneberry" given because the flower bud and its stem resembled the neck, head and beak of a crane.

Cranberry production requires cool summer temperatures, so put any ideas of growing them in Mississippi out of your head right now. While it might appear that cranberries are plants that grow in water, this is not the case. Water must be available for irrigation, for flooding to protect the plants against winter injury, for insect control and to aid in harvest, but the bog must be capable of being drained and flooded at will.

Harvest begins in late summer when the small berries mature and turn red. Years ago all cranberries were hand harvested with each harvester averaging only 3 to 4 bushels a day. The development of hand held scoops increased the daily average to 20 bushels per harvester. A scoop harvester consisted of a box-like catcher with a comb-like leading edge to pull the berries from the plant. Today the bulk of the berries are mechanically harvested by large combing type machines with flotation tires. The harvested berries were originally marketed in 100 pound wooden barrels and yields are still reported in barrels. However, the fresh berries are now available in 12 ounce bags or window cartons.

In 1986, the U.S. production of cranberries was a record-setting 3.57 million barrels with Wisconsin, Massachusetts, New Jersey, Oregon and Washington providing the bulk of the crop.

Once purchased, cranberries require refrigeration at 36 to 40 degrees and a relative humidity of 85 to 90 percent. One-half cup of fresh cranberries provides 10 percent of the recommended daily allowance of vitamin C and has only 25 calories. However, this is not a fruit that has so much appeal and flavor that it is readily eaten fresh out of hand.

Two viruses join to kill dogs

Canine coronavirus and canine parvovirus, the two leading causes of viral diarrhea, have now joined forces to cause acute diarrhea that can lead to death in puppies and dogs.

This phenomena of two or more infectious agents combining in the intestinal tract to cause more severe symptoms if often referred to as the "enteritis complex."

Parvovirus is a highly contagious disease which causes severe diarrhea, vomiting and often leads to death.

Coronavirus, the second leading cause of viral diarrhea is being diagnosed more often. This disease affects dogs of all ages but is most severe in puppies.

Symptoms include diarrhea, vomiting, excessive thirst, weight loss, listlessness and loss of appetite.

Coronavirus, while not a new virus, is difficult to diagnose requiring new sophisticated techniques involving electron microscopy and/or immunofluorescence. Coronavirus can occur simultaneously with parvovirus to cause even more severe symptoms which lessens the chance of recovery.

Preliminary studies conducted by Cornell University indicates that coronavirus is playing a more important role in the infectious canine enteritis complex than previously thought. This study demonstrated that a dual infection of both coronavirus and parvovirus can produce acute viral diarrhea with a 100 percent mortality rate.

The severity of a dual infection is caused by the two viruses' simultaneous attack on the intestine.

This recent information is of great importance to veterinarians, dog breeders, show trainers, kennel owners and dog owners everywhere.

Dogs need to be protected against both coronavirus and parv because dual infections of these two extremely contagious diseases presents a dangerous situation which is occurring throughout the country, as reported by Dr. James F. Evermann of Washington State University.

Dr. Evermann, regarded as one of the nation's top authorities on the diagnosis of canine enteritis (intestinal) diseases, reported on routine tests sent to three U.S. diagnostic labs and one in Canada to diagnose intestinal disorders.

At all testing sites, dual infections of coronavirus and parvovirus were isolated in no fewer than 15 percent of the cases and up to 25 percent in others.

Dr. Evermann said that as early as 1980, researchers discovered that "dogs infected with both viruses had a higher fatality rate than dogs infected with either virus alone."

Typically, in a routine vaccination program, dogs are vaccinated against parvovirus; but are not protected against coronavirus, a disease which has been overlooked as a threat to canine health. Now, with the discovery of the dangers involved, coronavirus will most likely be incorporated into routine vaccination schedules across the country.

A recent technological breakthrough from a leading manufacturer in the animal health industry now allows puppies and dogs to be protected against both parvovirus and coronavirus in one vaccine. Called The Puppyshot or Duramune DA2PP+CvK, this exclusive product is the first to combine parvovirus and coronavirus—the two most important viruses in the enteritis complex—in to a single shot.

In addition to coronavirus and parvovirus, the new vaccine also protects against distemper, hepatitis and parainfluenza—three other serious viral diseases that afflict dogs of all ages.

The Puppyshot has exceeded all standards for safety and effectiveness in the prevention of parvovirus, coronavirus, distemper, hepatitis and parainfluenza, according to Ford Dodge Laboratories of Fort Dodge, Iowa, the manufacturer of the vaccines.

Strong winds cause damage

MISSISSIPPI STATE—Strong winds and tornadoes, in a 12-county area in the central and western part of Mississippi caused serious damage to property during the Nov. 16 storms that hit the state.

Officials are indicating that more than $13.6 million in damage has been reported primarily in a 13-county area. Damage reported was mostly to building roofs and six laying houses were destroyed and another 20 were damaged, according to Fred Adams, chief executive officer of the business. Most of the damage to the 26 houses was to roofs, insulation and ends of the barns. He said that 154 houses were not damaged.

"High winds and two or more tornadoes came through the area," Adams said.

Adams said 30,000-40,000 chickens were killed during the storm. Another 150,000-200,000 had to be taken to market early because of the damage to their houses. He estimated a loss of $300,000 in birds.

Two dairy farms and one beef farm in the Loyd Star community in western Lincoln County also reported substantial damage from the storm.

New school exchange program planned

RESTON, Va.—The National Association of Secondary School Principals reports creation of School Partnerships International, a project to develop long term relationships between secondary schools in the United States and more than 10 other nations.

"As our world is shrinking it becomes increasingly important that high school students learn about all nation's people, culture, economy and political system," said Kathleen Driscoll Dunn, director, School Partnerships, International.

"The uniqueness of this project is that while it's an exchange program, it's much more. Our aim is to develop long-term partnerships between schools here and abroad. Out of those partnerships, student exchange trips will grow."

This new program is a successor to NASSP's School Exchange Service, a 15-year-old program which last year involved 2,078 American students traveling abroad and 2,982 international youngsters studying in the United States.

Last year SES also sponsored one of the first study tours to the Soviet Union where students from American secondary schools actually studied in Soviet schools.

The partnership approach is based on a high school in the United States establishing a long-term relationship with a single international high school.

Students in both schools will spend considerable classroom time studying the language, culture, history, music and art, economy and political system of the other nation before exchange trips take place.

During exchanges students will be housed in homes of students at their partnership school, attend classes at that school, and become involved in community activities.

"This program is not a vacation, sight-seeing trip, or single experience," said Dunn. "It's an educational approach based on developing a solid understanding of both their partner and their own country. When American students travel abroad they will have to represent their region and country. They will serve as a resource in the classes in their partner school and could even conduct classes for the host students."

Students will be briefed on cross cultural differences between the United States and the partner country.

"It certainly isn't enough just to know the dates of major historical events in the partner nation," she said. "Students must understand how cultures differ and are the same. For example, in the United States giving flowers to another is a nice gesture. In many other nations giving flowers also is a gesture of kindness, but some flowers carry very specific meanings. Certain flowers are given only at funerals. Without that knowledge, students could embarrass themselves."

Ten nations are currently involved in the program: Austria, Britain, France, Germany, Costa Rica, Japan, Italy, Israel, Spain and Venezuela. Dunn also hopes that the Soviet Union will participate again and that China will join for the first time this year.

School Partnerships International, is guided by a five-person advisory committee:

Chairman George Simonian, principal, Chelmsford High School, Chelmsford, MA; Robert Meyer, principal, Brewster High School, Brewster, NY; Howard Lawrence, principal, Rolling Hills High School, Rolling Hills, CA; James Parent, principal, Calvert High School, Prince Frederick, MD; Art Vrettas, Administrative Assistant, Buckeye Local Board of Education, Ashtabula, OH.

Schools wishing further information on School Partnerships International, should request a response packet by writing NASSP, 1904 Association Dr., Reston VA 22091, or phoning (703) 860-0200.

Public radio features French composers

Works by three French composers—Gounod, Ravel and Debussy—will be featured on "Mississippi Concert Hall" on Thursday, Dec. 3, at 9 a.m. on PRM. A repeat broadcast will air at 1 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 6.

Featured first is the Southern Arts Woodwind Quintet performing Charles Gounod's Petite Symphonie. This was recorded at Marsh Auditorium on the University of Southern Mississippi campus in Hattiesburg.

Next, Alborada del graciioso by Maurice Ravel is performed by pianist Lawrence Goldman of the music faculty of Mississippi Valley State University. This was recorded at H.G. Carpenter Auditorium at MVSU in Itta Bena.

Ulrich-Jackson

First Baptist Church of Long Beach was the setting for the Oct. 24 marriage of Pamela Lynn Jackson of Saucier and Robert Jeffery Ulrich of Pass Christian.

Dr. David Spencer officiated at the afternoon ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Jackson of Saucier. The groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. John Ulrich Sr. of Pass Christian.

Nuptial music was presented by organist Lynn Grier and vocalists Chuck and Theresa Switzer.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a princess style gown of ivory bridal satin, fashioned with high neckline traced with seed pearls and iridescent. The fitted bodice was adorned with chantilly lace encrusted with sequins and pearls and long, tapered sleeves were enhanced with re-embroidered lace, sequins and pearls and ended in V-notched cuffs. Tiny satin covered buttons closed the dress back, and the skirt swept from an elongated waistline to a cathedral length train. Beaded and pearl lace applied were scattered on the skirt and train.

A V-band headpiece featured a cluster of silk flowers, pearls and sequins at the side, while the back was fashioned with a border of pearls and flowers. A pouf of silk illusion held a two-tiered fingertip veil.

She carried a cascade of ivory silk orchids, gardenias, tea roses and stephanotis interspersed with baby's bread, pearls and English ivy with lace and satin streamers tied in love knots.

Mrs. Tina Ford of Memphis, Tenn. and Karen Wilson of Houston, Tex. were matron and maid of honor, respectively.

Bridesmaids were Robin Moore and Rachel Dobbs of Gulfport; Darla Oliver of Lafayette, La.; Mrs. Tammy Franks of West Blocton, Ala.; and Mrs. Bridget Ulrich of Pass Christian, sister-in-law of the groom.

Flower girls were Jennifer Cuevas and Courtney Ulrich of Pass Christian, nieces of the groom.

Greg Brock of Capitol Heights, Md. was best man.

Groomsmen were Dennis Ulrich and Johnny Ulrich, brothers of the groom, Charlie DeMetz, Dwayne Saucier, brother of the bride.

Ushers were Steve Ulrich, cousin of the groom, Jamie Jenkins, Arthur Hayden and Randal Ladner, all of Pass Christian; and Bennett Robbins of Montgomery, Ala., uncle of the bride.

Ring bearers were Michael Jackson of Saucier, brother of the bride; and Brian Kowalski of Pass Christian, nephew of the groom.

A reception followed the ceremony at St. Paul's gymnasium in Pass Christian.

On return from a wedding trip to Hawaii, the couple will reside in Pass Christian.

Pre-nuptial parties
A linen shower was held in the home of Mrs. Luck Puckett, also hosted by Mrs. Jewel Saucier, Mrs. Beverly Smith, Mrs. Melli Kainer and Rozanne Ford.

A White Bible Service was given by the Young Baptist Women of the Belaire Baptist Church, followed by a miscellaneous shower hosted by the Estes Sunday School class.

A miscellaneous shower was hosted by Mrs. Susan Robbins, aunt of the bride.

The home of Mrs. Bridget Ulrich was the setting for a lingerie/miscellaneous shower, also hosted by Robin Moore and Rachel Dobbs.

A surprise party was given by employees of the Gulf Coast Mosquito Control Commission.

Laurie's Tea Room was the setting for a bridesmaids luncheon, hosted by Mrs. Tina Ford.

Parents of the groom hosted a rehearsal dinner at the Penthouse Garden Apartments recreation room.

Fat, cholesterol roles vary

By Linda S. Moore

Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service

Increased consciousness about cholesterol content in certain consumer products has contributed to the similar focus on saturated fats, and the mutual affect they share on the causes of heart disease.

"All the research that is going on in the areas of heart disease and high-blood pressure is where the recommendations for cutting down on saturated fats and cholesterol are coming into the picture, but they are really not the same issue," said Human Nutrition Specialist Melissa Mixon with the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service.

The specialist said controlling cholesterol levels may simply be done by knowing what foods are high in cholesterol and trying to use those in moderation. Mixon said the real problem comes for those with heart problems and who consequently need to look more specifically at their cholesterol intake.

Mixon said normally, a healthy individual may eat cholesterol and their liver will automatically reduce the amount of cholesterol it produces and maintain a balanced system.

"Some research indicates that saturated fats in diets effect cholesterol levels," she said.

Comparisons of cholesterol and saturated fats primarily stem from the fact that both are derived from animals. However, the presence of one does not necessarily indicate the presence of the other in a product.

Unlike saturated fats, unsaturated fats are usually found in plants. Mixon said that coconut and palm oils, which are high in saturated fats, are exceptions to that general rule.

Mixon said saturated fats are notably firmer products and not liquid in density. In some instances, a producer may indicate (truthfully) on the product label that the product is cholesterol-free because the contents are vegetable in origin. However, because the product has been through a process called hydrogenation, it will be high in saturated fats.

"Trends for producers are changing. They are trying to meet consumer demands because consumers are more health conscious. Therefore, the producers are trying to reduce saturated fats in their products as well as cholesterol," Mixon said.

However, ingredients such as palm and coconut oils appeal to producers because they are cheaper than products containing unsaturated fats. She said producers will often prefer using saturated fats because they are more stable and will not spoil so they have a longer shelf life. They can also fry at higher temperatures.

Mixon said consumers can fight saturated fats and high cholesterol levels in similar ways by trimming excess fats off meats, drinking low-fat or skim milk, removing the skin from chicken and by using vegetable/corn oils.

"With a healthy individual, you don't really have to eliminate any specific foods," she said.

Mixon recommends consumers become familiar with ingredients included on label ingredient lists, especially on products such as margarine.

Volunteers vital to success of animal rehabilitation program

By Brenda Frechou

Leticia Stribling of Bay St. Louis serves as a volunteer for Wildlife Rehabilitation and Nature Preservation Society.

"WRANPS is a non-profit volunteer organization that has a center in Pass Christian which is not open to the public because we strictly rehabilitate animals there and the less contact these animals have with people, the better," she reported in a recent interview.

"We don't take skunks, poisonous snakes or bats. Skunks and bats pose a threat of rabies and we don't take domestic animals," she pointed out.

"Another animal that we have never handled is an alligator. When one is spotted injured or is found to be on a person's property the best thing to do is call the Fish and Game Commission," Stribling added.

"Anything else we'll take. If we are unable to rehabilitate it, we'll transfer it to someone who has more expertise in that animal. If an injured wolf were found in the area, it may be sent to Memphis, Tenn. to someone who has more experience with wolves."

Her response to the question of how many animals the center has rescued was, "Since the center opened in May, we've had about 170 birds and some of those calls were multiple because there were eight or ten in a nest that were counted as one, so we've probably had close to 220 counting mammals."

"This is the season for raptors (birds of prey) to start being injured. A lot of first-year predators just coming out of the nest will be shot by hunters or by children who receive BB guns as Christmas presents."

"We have an injured osprey we are rehabilitating now that was found in the Pascagoula area with a gunshot wound to one of its wings."

"Part of the wing had to be amputated and he won't be released back to the wild because he can't fly anymore in order to hunt. This is a bird that is rare to the area and has a wingspan of six feet because he is a mature bird."

Concerning the fate of animals who can't be rehabilitated, she notes,

"The idea behind WRANPS is to rescue, rehabilitate and release. We don't keep animals as pets or turn them over to someone else as pets. We try to place them in a zoo or an educational program."

"We have some permanently crippled animals at the center that we use for educational purposes when we give educational programs to schools and community organizations."

"For more information on the programs, call WRANPS at 452-WILD."

On federal laws protecting wildlife, she said, "Wild animals can't be kept legally and fines are imposed on persons who are caught keeping wildlife as pets."

"A person can't injure a wild animal unless it is hunting season for that specific animal, and if someone is seen shooting any animal out of its hunting season that person should be reported immediately to the Fish and Game Commission."

"Parents should be aware that they are responsible when their children are caught injuring wildlife."

"Unfortunately, it's hard to enforce these laws because there aren't enough Fish and Game enforcers to cover such a large area."

She discussed other hazards to wildlife. "Pollution is a big killer. Plastic rings that come off a sixpack of soda get caught on an animal's neck and they can't eat, so they starve to death."

"Clear plastic bags that are blown or thrown off boats are eaten by sea turtles who think they are jellyfish and die from this. An 80-year-old sea turtle may die because someone was careless about the disposal of a plastic bag."

"Diving, swimming and wading birds get fish line caught around their feet or wings and they can't fly or swim. They can drown or starve to death, whichever comes first."

"If a person is fishing and their fishing line breaks, that person should put it in a garbage can and not leave it balled up on the sea wall or throw it into the water."

"Last year we spotted a pelican that was drowning in the bay and we managed to get him out of the water safely. He had gotten himself completely entangled in fishing line and was almost starved to death, so we fed and watched him carefully until his strength was renewed and we could release him."

"He almost died because someone didn't think about what fishing line thrown into the water could do."

"Bait cans and fishhooks left on the seawall to rust also pose a serious threat. Please put these items in a garbage can."

"I'm sure people who fish out here enjoy watching the birds and animals and it's never occurred to them that litter is hurting the wildlife."

"Please don't throw a bag of partially eaten food out of a car window."

dow because a foraging animal will investigate the bag and be hit by a car."

When asked what a person should do when a wild animal seems to be injured she said, "Call the center. We have a federal permit to rehabilitate wildlife and anyone who tries to treat these animals without having a permit is breaking the law."

"The best thing to do is go and call for help while someone else keeps the animal from further harm. If it's in the street and it's going to be hit by a car, try to shoot it over to the roadside."

"Do not pick a wild animal up in your arms. An injured animal doesn't like humans and even when dying can cause severe injuries to a person."

"We seldom pick up an animal without gloves and glasses on or without a towel or net to throw over them and we now how to approach them."

When asked her opinion of the public's attitude toward wildlife her response was, "I believe that people in Hancock County have always been concerned about wildlife and now there's a place to call for help."

"Before the center opened, people would find injured wildlife and not know what to do with them so they would have to destroy them."

"We're very pleased with the response we have gotten from people in Hancock County."

"One of the advantages of living here is being able to see wildlife that people elsewhere don't see and people in the county enjoy seeing it and want to protect it."

"When asked if she thought the effort was worth so much of her time she said, "There's nothing like the feeling of having taken care of an animal for two or three weeks and then releasing it to live a healthy happy life again."

Planning essential in lighting a home

By Frances Graham
Housing Specialist
Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service

Home lighting does not have to be elaborate or expensive, but it must be well planned in order to be effective and efficient. Three main types of home lighting exist: general, task, and accent.

General lighting has the function of lighting the entire area to the degree necessary for daily activities such as conversation, eating breakfast, or hanging clothes in a closet. Usually general lighting is provided by fixtures mounted on the ceiling.

This enables the light to spread evenly to all parts of the room. If the ceiling is painted white or a light color, it reflects the light and distributes it around the room.

In rooms where ceiling fixtures are not appropriate, the reflective ability of a ceiling can be very important. This permits a floor or table lamp to bounce the light off the ceiling as general light.

Since bedrooms, living rooms, and dining rooms do not need bright general light and since a feeling of warmth is desired, incandescent lights are often the choice. The light source should be either diffused through frosted glass hidden from direct view or reflected off the ceiling.

Another type of general light that might be used in bedrooms, living rooms and dining rooms is wall lighting. Lighted walls expand space visually, making rooms appear larger. Fluorescent concealed behind a shielding board produce a soft diffused light.

Incandescent fixtures may be recessed, ceiling mounted, or attached to a track for general lighting. When lighting a wall behind a seating group, locate the light so that people seated there do not see the brightness of a bulb or the interior of the fixture.

The purpose of task lighting is to concentrate light on areas that require a higher intensity of light for seeing tasks such as reading or preparing food. Although task lighting can be used to supplement general lighting, it is designed to function as a visual task light and is often shielded to minimize the spreading of light. Task lights are kept from shining directly into the eyes by the use of shaded and recessed fixtures that throw a narrow beam.

Fluorescent provides good task lighting over counters in the kitchen or behind valances in a bathroom. For other visual tasks, incandescent are often used. Incandescent have neither the shape nor bulb limitations of fluorescent and are easier to adapt to lamps, spotlights and fixtures.

The purpose of accent lighting is to draw attention to a particular feature or object in a room, such as valance lighting that spills down on draperies and brings out texture, or a small spotlight that illuminates a painting.

Accent lighting is accomplished in much the same way as task lighting, but the quality of light needed is usually much less and a light source often needs to be out of view. Incandescent fixtures are usually used for accent lighting.

Good lighting can do exciting things to a home. It can make it more livable, enjoyable and attractive. It can make a small room seem larger.

The light plan for a home should take all its activities into account. It should combine general overall lighting, task lighting for special seeing tasks, and accent lighting for decorative interests. The combination of these lighting types can provide a variety of lighting for family needs and moods.
